Bank charges: Please note that the remitting banks where the United Nations Office at Geneva Treasury maintains its accounts do not deduct any bank charges from outgoing payments. The full amounts are transmitted by the remitting banks. Your bank or any intermediary banks, however, may deduct service fees from the remittances. Please note that the United Nations does not reimburse any bank fees deducted by intermediary banks or by receiving banks.
Accounts at non-commercial banks or at offshore banks: Making a payment to an offshore bank account or to an account at non-commercial bank (such as brokerage house) is often difficult. Delay or extra bank charges may result. UNOG Treasury will only make payments to bank accounts. Please note that it is the responsibility of the beneficiary to make his/her banking arrangements for investments and brokerage banks.
